

"EIGHTY-EIGHT"

Game was Practiced Upon Another Wheeling Merchant.

AGAIN IT WAS UNSUCCESSFUL.

The Raised Check of C. E. Calligan on the Germania Bank not Being Honored, The Crooks Under Arrest in Cleveland But will not be Prosecuted in this County, There Being an Entire Lack of Evidence, Touching Locality.

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 14.
Thomas D. Bennett, Chief of Police, Wheeling:

DEAR SIR:—We have in custody Joseph Winter, alias Montz Bombers, and John Wray, alias Ray.
They are the parties who offered a check at the First National bank at Alliance, Ohio, for payment. The cashier not knowing them refused to pay the cash, but accepted it for collection. It is a check on the Germania Half Dollar Savings bank of your city, payable to the order of John Wray, amount $50, signed by C. E. Calligan.

Originally the check was made for $5, which was raised to $50 when presented in Alliance, and therefore was not cashed. They left their address to remit to Cleveland, and last night we arrested the parties and they are now in custody, awaiting your reply.

The check was endorsed by John Wray and Joseph Winter. This is no doubt a forgery, and if you want to prosecute the parties, advise me at once.

Respectfully,
GEORGE E. CORNER,
Superintendent of Police.

Chief Bennett received the letter of which the above is a copy yesterday afternoon, and it was the first intimation received here of the arrest of the pair of crooks who were working the "eighty-eight" game in this city. The Intelligencer exclusively chronicled the attempt to work this game in Wheeling, in Tuesday's paper, giving an account of the effort to defraud Etz & Seifert to the extent of $72. However, as the check was not cashed, when raised from $5 to $50, the crook "Wray" or "Ray" was out just $5 and the Wheeling firm was "in" to that amount.

The other attempt to work the game on C. E. Calligan, the Market street tailor, was equally unsuccessful. As detailed in the letter to Chief Bennett, Winter and Wray attempted to cash the raised check at Alliance, Ohio, but were unsuccessful. Leaving the check with the bank with the request that it be sent on to Wheeling for collection, they went on to Cleveland, where they were placed under arrest. In the meantime the check came to the Germania Half Dollar bank in this city, and the bank officials, suspecting something wrong, called up Mr. Calligan, who promptly denounced the check as having been raised from $5 to $50. Of course payment was refused and again the crooks were caught up on their own game. The man Wray entered Calligan's place last week and left an overcoat to be repaired. He soon returned and paid for the work. Then he proffered a ten dollar bill and asked Calligan to issue him a check for $5, which he wanted to send to that same "sick wife in Ohio" with whom the public is becoming familiar. He said he didn't want to send money in a registered letter, "because they are lost in the mail so often, don't you know." The fellow's smooth manners and general appearance impressed Calligan, who issued the check. The developments that followed are related above.

Chief Bennett consulted with Prosecuting Attorney Meyer relative to bringing Winter and Wray to Wheeling, but it was decided that it would be impossible to prove that the checks had been raised in West Virginia. It is more likely that they were raised from $5 to $50 after they left Wheeling. The Cleveland police were informed of this decision yesterday afternoon.

In Tuesday's paper the Intelligencer referred to the peculiar fact that Wray had tried the game on a Market street business man with success and then for some unknown reason presented the $5 check at a local bank for its original amount of $5, which, of course, he received.
It develops that this merchant was Charles Bachman, the produce dealer, and the reason the crook didn't raise the check was that Mr. Bachman uses a check perforator, making it impossible to raise its value to $50.

THE PYTHIAN FAIR.

Uniform Rank Night at the Show was a Notable Occasion—Some of the Leading Features.

There was a large attendance at the Pythian Castle last night, at the second night of the Pythian fair. The presence of a large number of Pythians of the Uniform Rank, added an especial lustre to the brilliant scene. The local companies were well represented, and there were many members present of the Bellaire and Benwood companies.

The crowd filled the gaily decorated auditorium, and the large sprinkling of uniforms gave a pleasing panoramic effect to the throngs moving about the booths. The booths did a thriving trade, and the second night of the affair was gratifying from every standpoint. There were many special features, and there was music to burn.

The ladies catered to good business at the fancy and refreshment booths, and the country store was as busy as a check exchange. Professor William Weisberger's side show was well patronized, and it deserves to be, for he has a collection that lays Barnum & Bailey's away in the chilly Klondike.
He has a great assistant in Colonel Frank Walther, whose band of dancing devils must be seen to be appreciated. Broncho Jack, the famous outlaw, Medleska, the woman of magic, the ossified man, and the wild man of Borneo are some others. Roly, the Second ward pickaninny, is a whole show in himself, and "the monkey." The side show is the real thing, and then some.
This evening will be "subordinate lodges night," and the "Dokies" will be there to-morrow evening. The fair concludes Saturday night.

THE POETRY OF MOTION

Exemplified by Mr. W. J. Hayes, Who is Deaf and Until Recently Dumb.

The poetry of motion was exemplified last night in the basement of St. Matthew's P. E. church, by Mr. W. J.
Hayes, of Pittsburgh, before a small and appreciative audience. Mr. Hayes is totally deaf, and was without the gift of speech until four years ago, but can speak so as to be understood now, although he can't hear what he utters.
Among his hearers last night were many deaf mutes.

Mr. Hayes is a bright young man. He is a graduate of the Mount Airy school for the deaf, at Philadelphia, and it was at this institution that he learned how to articulate. He was introduced by Rev. N. S. Thomas, who read extracts from an essay, entitled, "The Beautiful Language of Signs," written by Mr. Hayes. The essay explained many of the gestures and signs employed to convey ideas. For instance, to signify the color red, one must point to the lips; physician, the pulse is to be felt, etc. Mr. Hayes possesses a fine bearing, and his gestures were pleasing in their natural grace. His rendition by gesture of the hymn, "Nearer, My God to Thee," was the poetry of motion, and probably more beautiful were the gestures explanatory of the lines, "The gospel bells are ringing over the land from sea to sea."

The musical compositions known as "songs without words," are no more expressive than were Mr. Hayes' recitations without words. He has learned to play mechanically a few easy selections on the organ, and his playing furnished considerable amusement, in which he joined. He says he can determine the tempo of any musical composition, by watching the player's fingers.
As stated, he can speak fairly well, but in a monotone, due no doubt, to his being deaf. This, however, is remarkable and he learned to articulate by constant practice at the school he attended. He reads the Lord's prayer, and the Twenty-third Psalm last night.

The audience was charmed with Mr.
Hayes' entertainment. He is, at present, the guest of friends in this city.

DEATH OF A. W. WELLS.

He Was Known Throughout the West Virginia Pan-Handle.

Absalom W. Wells, well known throughout the Pan-Handle as Uncle Wells, died recently on his farm in Brooke county. He was one of the pioneer farmers of this section, and was aged seventy-eight years.
Deceased had been a subscriber to the Intelligencer since the early 'fifties.
The Wheeling Herald, in alluding to Mr. Wells, says:

He was a son of Bazeel Wells, and was born in Brooke county, in April, 1819, on land originally taken up by his grandfather by tomahawk right, in 1785. His father, Bazeel, was also a native of Brooke county.

He married Mary Palmer, a sister of J.
C. Palmer, esq., in August, 1852. They had four children, of whom three survive, Mrs. Job Lewis, J. C. Wells and Robert M. Wells, Jr.
Mr. Wells had only been sick six or eight days and died of a general breaking down of the system, or old age. He had stated a few days ago that he had never known what sickness was, so far as being confined to bed and was an even-tempered, cheery, good citizen all his long life. His friends were numbered by the hundreds.

Col. Milton Wells, a former citizen of this state, and John D. Wells, of Columbus, O., are brothers, and attended the funeral.

THE MISSING BARD.

A Motive For His Disappearance—A Charge of Forgery.

The following from last evening's Moundsville Echo, furnishes a motive for the disappearance of W. H. Bard, the Pittsburgh life insurance agent, who was last seen near the Parish Institute at Moundsville, on Monday, December 8:

Bard tried to discount two notes at Pittsburgh several days ago, bearing John C. Bardall's signature, but the bank was suspicious and telephoned Mr. Bardall about them. Saturday the latter went to Pittsburgh to have Bard arrested for forgery. He was too late, though, for the bird had flown.

The notes were dated November 10 and 28, and were for $487.60 and $245.63, and the signatures were such clever imitations of Mr. Bardall's handwriting that he himself could not have pronounced them forgeries had they been detached from the notes. The body of the notes was written in a different hand.

EASTON RELEASED.

The New York Authorities Were Satisfied He was not the Man They Were in Search of—The Decision of Justice Keller was Chaired by the Crowd.

Yesterday, at noon, Sheriff Collins, of Rensselaer county, N. Y., accompanied by County Prosecutor Howard, County Detective Murnane and a man named John O'Connor, who was said to be able to recognize the man who murdered George Plichter, at Sand Lake, N. Y., last September, arrived in Martin's Ferry, coming in response to information of the arrest of Jack Easton, the ball player, who was placed in custody last Sunday afternoon at the instance of Marshall Burns, of Martin's Ferry. That official felt certain that Easton was the man wanted, but developments have shown he made a glaring mistake.

At 1 o'clock the hearing was held before Justice Keller, of Martin's Ferry.
The first witness was O'Connor, who said that after he had looked at Easton he had come to the conclusion that he was not the murderer. If he had arrived at any other conclusion everybody would have been vastly surprised, for the evidence of the Aetna-Standard people was sufficient to show Easton's innocence. James Medill, the paymaster, and Alex. Dixon, the labor boss at the Aetna-Standard, testified that Easton was at work in the mill on the day of the murder. Documentary evidence in support of their testimony was given.
The justice at once discharged Easton.
The ball player's friends cheered the announcement of the justice's decision, and Jack was the recipient of quite an ovation at the hands of his friends.

AT THE HEARING.

The hearing to establish the identity was held in the afternoon before Justice Theodore Keller and in the presence of a large crowd of spectators. Attorney George Duncan appeared for Easton, and Attorney J. C. Gray was present with the New York officials. Attorneys Francis, Cooke and others were present to watch the proceedings. Beside Mr.
Duncan sat Mr. and Mrs. Easton and near by were several persons who were there to testify in his behalf if necessary. The examination lasted only a short time and the result was not unexpected.

Marshall William Burns told why he made the arrest, stating that he had received a description and a picture of the man wanted, that he had showed the picture to a number of persons who knew Easton and they said it was his picture and that he thought he had the right man.

Sheriff Collins said Easton had been arrested as answering to a description he had sent of the man wanted, to different parts of the country and he thought this was not the man. He thought the resemblance very close and the description fairly good and considered it an agree that any officer would naturally make under the circumstances. He stated they had requisition papers from New York, but would not apply for papers from the governor of Ohio. "The man we want has the letters W. P. A. on his arm and we find no such mark on either of this man's arms."

District Attorney Howard told that they brought Mr. O'Connor, who saw the murder and "he hasn't the slightest doubt that this is not the man, and there is no doubt in our opinion that this is not the man. The man we want is not over twenty-four years old and weighs ten or twelve pounds less than this man. The man we want stands erect and we make no claim on this man. There is about ten years difference in the age of the two men. In justice to the marshal, I would say the resemblance is very close."

Fred O'Connor, who saw the offense committed, told that he knew the man five days previous and Easton was not him. He said he would know the man, that he has a finer voice than Easton, that it is more like a girl's, that he is eight or nine years younger. He was asked if he was positive that Easton was not the man and he said he was.
Asked if the parties were relatives or friends of his and if he had any interest in the case, he answered no.

Alex. Dixon, of the Aetna-Standard mills, testified that Easton had gone to work in these mills on August 30 and produced the book and tickets. Dixon said he had punched tickets which showed that Easton worked on September 20, 21, 22, 23 and 24 and saw him every day he was at work.

Squire Keller then announced the discharge of Easton, saying there was not sufficient evidence to hold him and a yell went up from the crowd on the outside of the railing, which had quietly listened to the proceedings with much interest.

Detective Murnane informed the Intelligencer representative that there is quite a difference in the teeth of the two men, the man wanted having a remarkably good set of teeth.
Several persons who saw the man representing himself to be S. B. Murphy and who had a lot of household goods removed from the Terminal Junction to the Harrison building for storage, say it was not Easton. These goods came from Goshen, N. Y., and Easton's goods which came from Springfield, Mass., were removed to one of the Aetna-Standard houses in Aetnaville.

SUB-DISTRICT MINERS

Organization of the Over-the-River Field Meets at Bellaire.

There was a delegate convention of the miners of Ohio sub-district No. 5, at the Bellaire city hall yesterday. Fourteen delegates were present, representing the miners of Belmont, Jefferson and Tuscarawas counties.

They discussed the scale now in force and finally adopted it for the ensuing year, with a sliding clause to prevent trouble and to meet the ups and downs of the coal trade. They also discussed the purer air problem and urged the inspectors to more rigid rules in some cases.

The convention concluded by electing officers for the ensuing year as follows: President—Alexander Smith, Mineral Point.

Vice president—Charles Hall, Sili-water.

Secretary-treasurer—John Stevenson, Barnhill.

Directors—Alexander Smith, Charles
